Science 101: More than 100 science facts to help non-science majors prepare for college science classes is a mini-book aimed at students not interested in science initially but who now find themselves in science-dominated fields such as health sciences.

After years of teaching I have found that most students entering college are not prepared for college, particularly the science classes.

This mini-book covers the base science facts that can be used to build a broader base of knowledge. It is organized into bite-sized chunks making it easier to digest the information. Learning these facts will give you a step up for your foray into college science classes.
